

CITY SWEEP BY CYCLONE; LITTLE DAMAGE IN COUNTRY

STORM PATH SEEN BY DESTRUCTION

Black Funnel Shaped Cloud Dips Down, Uprooting Trees and Unroofing Buildings.

SEVERAL WAGONS OVERTURNED

Wind was of Short Duration but Filled the Air with Branches and Leaves—Roar Heard a Mile.

Heralded by a roar that could be heard for more than a mile a cyclone traveling in a low hanging, funnel shaped cloud swept the north part of the city about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon leaving unroofed buildings, uprooted trees, entangled wires and other destruction in its wake. The whirling, twisting cloud was but a short distance above the city and had it been a little lower more widespread destruction would have undoubtedly resulted. It is estimated that the cloud was not more than four hundred feet high.

The cyclone seemed to approach from the west and traveled in a general easterly direction. Its path was narrow and the greatest destruction was wrought in a few blocks where the cloud dipped down suddenly and then rose as quickly and continued towards the east. Practically no damage was done south of the B. & O. Southwestern railroad tracks and even in the extreme north portion of the city the wind was not heavy enough to cause great alarm.

Residents living without the cyclonic zone could see the approaching wind which suddenly filled the air with branches and leaves from the trees. While the wind was at its height a darkness of short duration fell over the city. As soon as the wind subsided and electrical display accompanied by thunder and rain followed. A decided drop in temperature was also noticed.

The cyclone hit the city in the neighborhood of West Fourth street where the tops of several trees were blown down. It traveled to the east tearing off part of the roof at C. S. Mercer's house, North Poplar street, and also damaging the roof at the home of William Peters, who also resides on North Poplar. A large tree at the home of Mrs. G. O. Barnes, on West Fourth was blown over and fell across the kitchen roof.

The wind struck West Second street, near the City Library, with great force and tore out the top of trees in front of the residence of Leroy Miller. At the corner of Second and Walnut streets it seemed to dip down and five large shade trees at the side of the residence of A. J. Pellens and Theodore Groub were uprooted and thrown across the street. All of these trees fell towards the east, showing that the wind was blowing in that direction. The tree

SLIGHT LOSS IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Roofs of Two Barns at Louis Richart Farm Torn Off and Carried Quite a Distance.

TELEPHONE WIRES GROUNDED

Practically no Loss in West Part of County—Brownstown and Vallonia Escape High Wind.

According to the reports Seymour was the center of the cyclone zone Thursday afternoon and very little damage was done elsewhere in Jackson county. The funnel shaped cloud passed over the city towards the east and dipped down at the farm of Louis Richart, Sr., near the county line. More damage was done on this farm than on any other in the vicinity.

At the Richart farm the roofs of two large barns were torn off and one was carried to a field a quarter of a mile away. There will be but little loss on the contents of the barns. A buggy in a shed was carried across the barn lot and was found against a fence. Three shade trees in the lawn near the house were uprooted.

Leo Richart was working in a field near the house when the storm came up and was compelled to hold to a fence to keep from being swept from his feet. Little damage was done to any of the buildings on the adjoining farms.

While the wind was very strong at Vallonia and Brownstown, no damage was wrought except that the tops and branches from a number of trees were blown down. Persons there watched the formation of the cloud and predicted that the wind would do damage here. It was evident, they declare, that the funnel had dipped down in this vicinity. Persons living west of here heard the rumbling sound of the wind and say that it sounded like an approaching train.

At Crothersville there was little wind and Tampico escaped the storm altogether. Reports from Cortland say that the wind came from the northwest and while branches were blown from the trees no sheds or buildings were overturned and the loss is practically nothing.

Several telephone lines were blown down west of Seymour but telephonic communication was carried on Thursday night between this city and Brownstown over one line. During the evening hundreds of calls to Brownstown were received as residents here were anxious to learn if there had been any damage there. The telephone wires to Vallonia were also down for a short time but the breaks were repaired and the service restored this morning.

No reports have been received of cyclone damage in any of the cities in this vicinity and it is believed that

ADDITIONAL PAINTINGS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED

Former Seymour Boy Sends Two Pictures from New York for the Art Exhibit Here.

The Seymour Art League received two paintings from New York this morning for the art exhibit which will open in Seymour, May 29. These pictures are by Harry Ward Swope, a former Seymour boy, who has attained considerable prominence as a painter. Several of his pieces have been exhibited in the Metropolitan Art Museum in New York City.

Interest in the Seymour art exhibit is growing every day and many people are making inquiry about it. The large shipment of pictures received last Saturday by the secretary, Earl M. Cox, has been stored to await the opening day. These with pictures that are yet to be received, will give Seymour a highly enjoyable exhibit.

AMERICAN TROOPS FOR OIL TERRITORY

Reported that Admiral Mayo Has Recommended Occupation for Protection Purposes.

EFFORT TO LOCATE SILLIMAN

Administration has Notified Dictator That American Consul Must Be Found.

By United Press.
Washington, May 8—Despite persistent official denials and marked reticence upon the part of the administration officials it was learned today that Admiral Mayo had recommended that the oil territory, near Tampico, be occupied by American troops for protection purposes only.

Dictator Huerta has issued orders prohibiting American vessels from clearing Mexican ports.

The administration, it was learned today, has ordered Huerta to find American Consul Silliman, who is reported to be held as a prisoner at Saltillo. The officials here are much concerned over his reported imprisonment. Several attempts have been made to locate the consul by American officials but their efforts have proven futile. Huerta is now imposed by the administration with the duty of protecting the consul.

GENERAL STRIKE WILL NOT BE CALLED NOW BY MINERS

Executive Committee Desires That "Walk Out" Will Not be Best Means of Meeting Conditions.

By United Press.
Indianapolis, May 8—The executive committee of the United Mine Workers of the World today announced that a decision had been reached whereby a general strike would not be called at this time because of existing conditions in the Colorado strike regions.

It was stated that it was believed that it would be better to keep all miners employed so that the Colorado strikers might be furnished with funds. An appeal was made for funds to fight John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

COMPLAINT FILED WITH MEDIATORS

Dictator Huerta Alleged that United States has Violated the Terms of the Armistice.

NO EXPLANATION IS MADE

South American Envoys Refuse to Discuss Message from Capital—Consider Negotiations.

Washington, May 8—Dictator Huerta virtually threatened to withdraw from the mediation proceedings today, because the American lines had been extended in Vera Cruz. He contends that the Administration has violated the terms of the armistice.

Washington, May 8.—Secretary Bryan announced today that this government had received a note from the South American mediators seeking to solve the Mexican crisis, in which complaint was made by the Huerta government that American operations at Vera Cruz were in violation of the armistice.

Asked as to the details of the mediating envoys' note, Mr. Bryan said: "It simply sets forth what Huerta says. A reply to the note will be made."

None of the mediators would discuss the news from Mexico City regarding the Huerta protest, forwarded through Acting Minister of Foreign Relations Esteve Ruiz. It was said to be probable, however, that the envoys, or one of them, would go to the state department to negotiate further regarding the protest against American military operations.

President Wilson, it was said, was informed last night of the Huerta government's communication, and it was expected that the subject would be considered at the cabinet meeting today.

It has been learned on high authority that the war department had under consideration today early an adequate re-inforcement of the command of General Funston at Vera Cruz, to carry out any movement that might be necessary into the interior of Mexico. The question of placing a large force of Americans in Vera Cruz, that would be strong enough to defend that port against any attack, or to undertake a possible campaign against Mexico City, was laid before the President and his cabinet by Secretary of War Garrison.

War department officials, it was said, decided that reinforcements were needed at Vera Cruz, at the long conference of Secretary Garrison and the general staff last night. The secretary and his advisers went over the entire military situation at Vera Cruz and other points in Mexico before reaching this decision.

Secretary Garrison called the conference after a cipher telegram from Vera Cruz had been delivered to him at the White House, where he was Splendid Remedy For Eczema Also for Salt Rheum, Acne, Tetter, Psoriasis and Other Skin Troubles.

After using S. S. S. for a while, the characteristic marks of all skin troubles change completely. When eczema has become chronic the lower skin loses its power to divert impurities and thus they continue to gather in the weak spots or those already attacked. The action of S. S. S. is that of an antidote, and this fact has been demonstrated time and time again in the most severe forms of weeping eczema.

Its influence in the tissues where the tiny arteries transfer the red blood for the worn-out blood to the veins is quite remarkable and goes on constantly with every tick of the clock—the beat of the heart.

And new skin is thus caused to form while the germs of irritating influences that cause eczema are scattered and their harmful nature entirely suspended.

S. S. S. has a wonderful tonic influence in the blood because it contains no "dope," is entirely free of any mineral drugs or any other drugs except the remarkable medicinal effect of the pure vegetable products of which it is made.

Few people realize how harmful are many of the strong, crude ointments that used to be in favor before they learned that S. S. S. is safe, speedy and sure. Ask at any drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. Give it a good trial and you will soon see a decided improvement in any form of skin trouble. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 535 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for special free advice and new book on skin or blood trouble.

PRIEST DELIVERS ADDRESS IN FAVOR OF BETTER ROADS One of Principal Speakers at Convention of National Old Trails Association.

Indianapolis, May 8—Father Harvey M. Shields, a Catholic priest of Dawson, N. M., was an interesting speaker at the third annual convention of the National Old Trails Association, which was opened here yesterday.

The meeting was called to order by J. M. Lowe, president, of Kansas City, Mo. Governor Ralston welcomed the delegates in a brief speech, following which the association was addressed by Mr. Lowe and Jesse Taylor of Ohio.

Father Shields, in his talk for better highways, said the need of good roads was impressed on him years ago. He related that he made the overland journey to New Mexico with his mother when only 7 years old. In the course of the journey the stage coach broke down owing to the bad roads and his mother suffered injuries in the accident which caused her death a few months later.

"Since then," said the speaker, "I have been a booster for good roads and try to work at it. The movement for good roads is human and divine. There is no dividing line between secular and religious things and laymen and ministers should work for good things both within and without the church."

Father Shields practices what he preaches, having served as highway commissioner of his home county in addition to his ministerial duties. He attends good roads conventions and advocates good roads "in and out of season," he says.

A. G. Batchelder, chairman of the executive committee of the American Automobile Association, delivered the principal address of the afternoon, telling of the plans of his organization for better roads.

"To an automobilist national co-operation is as essential as united effort within the state," said Mr. Batchelder, "with the immediate locality needs taking precedence over both. A motor driven vehicle accumulates its greatest mileage in its own vicinity, and the average owner naturally concerns himself with those matters most intimately connected with the operation of his car. But in the course of a twelve-month period, there are very few motorists who do not travel quite extensively in their own common-wealth and frequently visit adjoining states. Hence their interest not only in local ordinances and state laws, but their added concern in the statutes of other states."

ALL RESERVE BANKS ARE NOW QUALIFIED

Friday is Last Day for Auxiliaries to Affiliate With System, and 1,404 Remain to be Heard From.

Washington, May 8—Each of the twelve Federal reserve banks has had subscribed the minimum amount of stock, $4,000,000 to enable them to effect an organization. Of the 7,501 banks to be in the system, 6,097 have supplied to the organization committee their subscriptions. Three hundred banks subscribed to the stock today, bringing the total amount up to $96,267,000.

The last day on which subscriptions may be received is tomorrow. "The largest number of subscriptions received from any one district," said a treasury statement today, "is from the Chicago district, in which 781 banks have made their subscriptions."

"The next largest number of subscriptions have come from the Philadelphia district, where 686 banks have subscribed. In the Cleveland district 6117 banks have sent in their subscriptions; Kansas City 612 banks, and Dallas 607 banks."

"The largest amount subscribed is in New York state, $19,712,900 being subscribed by 426 banks."

W. P. G. Harding, Birmingham, Ala., has accepted an appointment on the federal reserve board.

NEVER SUSPECTED KIDNEY TROUBLE Gained Fifty Pounds in Weight

Some time ago I was suffering from what I supposed was rheumatism. I became so bad that I could hardly get on my feet from a sitting position. I ran down in weight from 195 to 145 pounds. I tried different kinds of medicine, but received little or no help. I saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root highly recommended for kidney trouble but I never had an idea that my kidneys were affected. I thought I would try a fifty cent bottle of Swamp-Root and see what the effect would be. I commenced taking it according to directions and in a few days I saw that it was helping me. I used the fifty-cent bottle and then bought three more dollar bottles and they completely cured me. I have gone back to my original weight—195 pounds—and I am a thorough advocate of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as I believe it to be a remarkable preparation for what it is recommended to do.

WILLIAM H. PARTCH, New Haven, Vt.

Personally appeared before me this 4th day of September, 1909, Wm. H. Partch, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

Mayor of Terre Haute Found Not Guilty of Conspiracy to Commit Election Frauds.

OTHER CASES TO BE DROPPED

Prosecution Surprised at Outcome of Trial Which Has Assumed National Importance.

By United Press.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 8—After deliberating but one-half hour the jury in the case of Donn M. Roberts, mayor of Terre Haute, charged with conspiracy to commit election frauds, returned a verdict of not guilty. The jury reported at 11:10 o'clock. The verdict was cheered by the large crowd that had assembled at the court room. In a speech the defendant thanked the court, jury and his attorneys.

The prosecution announced that the other cases would be dropped. Special Prosecutor Joseph Roach said that he was surprised that a verdict of not guilty was returned because of the conclusive evidence that has been given.

The trial assumed state-wide, even national importance because of the political figures involved. Towards its close Crawford Fairbanks, millionaire brewer and Democratic politician eclipsed even the mayor-defendant because of his alleged interference in the action of the Vigo county grand jury. Thomas Taggart, national committeeman, may or may not have had his finger in the pie. Whether he did or not, the assertion has been made that he with Fairbanks meddled just in time to prevent the jury subpoenaing the latter.

The history of this case tells one of the most interesting chapters of political history in Indiana. It dates back to 1910, when John Lamb was the political power in the Democratic party in Terre Haute and when Donn Roberts was his henchman. A break between Roberts and Lamb is commonly given credit for the entire ruddle.

Roberts was city engineer. Louis Gerhardt, a Lamb man, was mayor of Terre Haute. He removed Roberts from his position. Roberts charged that this was done for "political purposes" and took his case to the courts but was defeated. Thus began an enmity between Lamb and Roberts that has lasted to the present day. It is said that the desire of Roberts to supplant Lamb in city, county and district politics has been the cause of every move of Roberts since that time.

In 1910, Lamb and Crawford Fairbanks came to their open break. Lamb was defending Thomas R. Marshall before the state convention. He attacked Fairbanks, calling him a brewer with modifications. Fairbanks said he had been insulted. Lamb won his fight for John Kern was nominated for United States senator as Marshall desired and against the wish of the Fairbanks-Taggart faction. It was then Taggart made his famous remark that "the Taggart machine is on the scrap heap", which proved far from true.

But Roberts here said his opportunity to gain a powerful aid against Lamb, and he sided with Fairbanks. He began to organize to beat Lamb in Vigo county. It was following this organization that 768 votes were cast in the Taylorville precinct for precinct committee in 1911. There aren't more than three hundred men, women, children, dogs and cats in Taylorville. The result was close and hinged on this precinct. But Roberts defeated Lamb in Vigo county and Terre Haute, wresting the organizations away from him. He then tried to win in the district.

When at Rockville Roberts tried either to elect himself or another district chairman he found it impossible. A deadlock resulted, and James Randall was chosen. When Roberts tried to oust Randall later he could not, and Randall is still district chairman.

Another phase of the fight then appeared. Lamb is attorney for the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern Traction company. Roberts attacked the traction company. As mayor of Terre Haute he attacked the franchise, which was so broad as to allow the company the use of most any of the city streets. In the fall of 1910 the case was tried of the city of Terre Haute against the T. H. I. & E. Traction Co., in which an attempt was made to set aside the franchise.

Here a peculiar and still unexplained feature appeared. Judge Robinson of Spencer, the trial judge, took the case under advisement. Judge Robinson was a man whose integrity was unquestioned, but that case remained "under advisement" until the judge died a few weeks ago. When newspapermen questioned the judge time and again he would say: "Oh, I'm tired," or "I'm not feeling good," or something else equally unsatisfactory to those who wanted a decision. With the death of the judge, the case was set back at the beginning. The traction company has its franchise and Roberts appears defeated in this phase of his fight against John Lamb.

Roberts raised a campaign cry against the traction company and was elected mayor in 1913. Detectives were at the polls and the evidence they gathered of alleged frauds formed the basis of this prosecution. Roberts alleged that the detectives were brought in by the traction company in a hatched-up plan to oust him in case he was elected. Others allege that the traction company had nothing to do with it.

It was following this that Judge Fortune got into the fight. Up to this time Fortune and Roberts had been known as henchmen of Fairbanks and Tom Taggart. Fortune announced his candidacy for renomination as circuit judge this year. Roberts opposed him.

Fortune is believed to have decided that either he must break Roberts or Roberts would break him. It was at this time that Crawford Fairbanks, the real power in Terre Haute Democracy, left quietly for a vacation in the southern seas. His political opponents assert that Fairbanks knew the plans of Fortune knew the unremediable break between the mayor and the judge, and decided to leave the country and "let them fight it out."

Joseph Roach, ex-convict and confessed murderer, was appointed special prosecutor to convict Roberts if possible. He knew every turn of politics here, where politics confessedly are the dirtiest existing in any city in Indiana. The grand jury was convened. Chalmers Hamill was placed over it as special prosecutor.

This grand jury, composed of farmers and directed by a man of unquestioned integrity, proved a surprise to all concerned. It went its way with steady stride, returning indictments by the handful, without fear or favor. When the county machine, controlled by Roberts, refused to pay its fees or those of the prosecutor, they let it be known they would serve without pay.

There was no interference until, according to Hamill, he let Fortune know that within the next week Tom

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Boggs, business associate of Crawford Fairbanks, would be indicted for election frauds, and that "within thirty minutes after Fairbanks returned to Indiana he would be subpoenaed before the grand jury."

According to Hamill, Fortune met Fairbanks in Indianapolis within a less time than 24 hours. Fairbanks came down from Chicago at a time when the grand jury had adjourned and could not call him. The next thing Terre Haute knew, the grand jury was discharged, Hamill had resigned in disgust and both the grand jury and Hamill were issuing statements charging the judge with bad faith. It has been charged that Taggart and Roberts were also in the conference at the Denison hotel, that Saturday afternoon after Fortune had learned that Fairbanks was to be called before the jury, but this is denied by others. Certain it is that Roberts and Taggart were in the hotel that afternoon.

The next development was the dismissal of several indictments against Roberts' men and the rumor that all would be dismissed. An attorney for the prosecution left the case. An element of Terre Haute citizens condemned the entire proceedings.

Thus the present trial of Roberts was an off-shoot of his quarrel with Lamb. The sentencing of William Huffman to the penitentiary for election frauds was an incident.

Announcement.

FOR TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE.

We are hereby authorized to announce the candidacy of Dr. W. M. Casey for trustee of Jackson township subject to the will of the Republican party. tf

Dr. W. M. Casey has announced that he is a candidate for trustee of Jackson township on the Republican ticket. He has lived in Jackson township for many years and had a wide acquaintance. He is well qualified for the position he seeks as he is fully informed as to the needs of the township and is a careful business man. With their business entrusted to Dr. Casey the voters of all parties could feel assured that he would look after their interests and manage the affairs of his office in a satisfactory manner.

Republican Township Convention.

A mass convention of the Republicans of Jackson township will be held Friday evening, May 22, 1914, at 8 o'clock at the city building, Seymour, Indiana, for the purpose of nominating candidates for township trustee, township assessor, justices of the peace and constables to be voted for at the general election to be held Nov. 3, 1914.

SEYMOUR, INDIANA

along Mr. Pellens' sidewalk fell across his fence crushing it and barely missing the large veranda at the rear of his home.

A peculiar feature of the cyclone was that the tree on the east side of Walnut street was first laid low and the other four on the opposite side of the street then fell in rapid succession. The trees in front of Mr. Groub's property shows that they were not solidly anchored by the roots. Several large fruit trees in Mr. Groub's lot were also blown over. A tree on Third street, near the Presbyterian church, was uprooted but was prevented from falling by an adjoining tree.

At the home of J. E. Gault, just north of the Presbyterian church on Walnut street, a large fruit tree was uprooted. Across the street at the home of J. H. Matlock another was laid low. Large branches were blown from the shade trees on Walnut street. Another tree in front of the Humbert home on Walnut street was blown down and large branches were broken from the trees in front of C. E. T. Dobbins' residence at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets.

The cyclone seemed to dip again in the block where Honan building is located on Indianapolis avenue and tore off the roof of the Peter Ross' tailor shop. A portion of this roof was carried to the top of a telephone pole and was suspended in the air on the wires. While the roof was being carried upwards it was seen to whirl around showing the peculiar motion of the wind.

The wind filled the air with leaves and dust and on West Second street it was almost impossible for one to stand against it. Several pedestrians were seen holding to telephone poles to brace themselves against the gale. The delivery wagon of the People's Grocery was standing at the intersection of Second and Chestnut streets and was blown over. Several spectators ran to the aid of the driver and succeeded in righting the overturned wagon. Other wagons were blown over.

The falling branches from the trees caused some damage to the telephone and electric light wires and the electrical current was switched off so that no one would be injured by any "live" wires which might have fallen to the ground. There was greater danger from "short circuits" as the trees were wet and would easily carry the current.

In the south part of the city there was little damage other than broken trees and branches. A short distance south of Seymour the wind was not unusually heavy and farmers did not know of the damage here until they visited the city.

The amount of the damage done to the shade trees is difficult to estimate. An effort will be made to save some of the largest trees that were uprooted but it is doubtful if they will grow after being replaced in the ground.

Electricians were sent to various parts of the city as soon as the storm was over to relieve the electric light wires of the weight of the broken branches. The street lamps were switched on again shortly after the usual hour and no further trouble was reported during the night. Several telephone wires were blown down and the phones on the several lines were out of commission for a short time.

the storm centered in Seymour and the immediate neighborhood. While the wind blew hard at Rockford, there was no loss of property.

Reports from Columbus say that that city was visited by a wind and rain storm but it was not as severe as in Seymour. At Franklin branches of trees were broken off but the wind had apparently lost much of its force by the time it reached that city.

Railroad men who returned to this city today from the east and west say there was no place along the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad that was visited by as severe a wind as Seymour. Considerable hail fell west of Seymour and the orchards are reported to have been damaged. While there was some wind at Mitchell and other towns west it did not come in cyclonic formation and little damage was wrought.

At North Vernon the wind was high and several trees were blown down and damaged. No buildings were unroofed, however, and the storm did not do general damage.

Mrs. Laura Moseley who has been visiting her brother, J. O. Sutton here for several days, returned to Indianapolis Thursday afternoon.

STREETS AND ALLEYS COVERED WITH BRANCHES

Cyclone Resulted in Additional Work at Close of Clean-up and Paint-up Campaign.

Additional work for the volunteers in the "clean-up and paint-up" campaign resulted from the cyclone Thursday afternoon when a large amount of trash and debris were scattered about the streets. Many alleys and streets that had been given especial attention were covered with branches, leaves, paper and other litter today. The rubbish, however, is being collected and in many places the streets and alleys are in a very commendable condition.

The city teamsters are at work hauling away the trash that has been piled in the alleys. Several teams were assigned to this work today and others will be added tomorrow. Street Commissioner Brown is making arrangements to visit all parts of the city Saturday and will have a sufficient number of wagons to take care of the work. He reports that the clean-up work has been going on in all parts of the city and that the streets and alleys are in a splendid condition. Many ash heaps and other unsightly piles of trash have been removed or burned during the campaign.

Adopt Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Indiana Study Club on Thursday afternoon, resolutions were passed commending the public spirit and enterprise shown by the Blish Estate in erecting a Club House for the use of the farmer and his family. These are epoch-making days for Seymour, the club decided, and the Farmers' Club house will add a lively impulse to the progress of our beautiful city. The Study Club joins the public in a rising vote of thanks to the Blish Estate for their generous gift.

attending the wedding of the President's daughter. He left the festivities hurriedly and summoned his aids to the war department.

Among the dispatches received was one which reported the firing of two oil wells at Tampico. The protection of American lives and property, it was asserted, was the prime motive behind the determination of army and navy officers that the American forces in Mexico should be reinforced.

Sunday School Lesson

May 10. (Second Quarter.) Lesson 6.
THE UNJUST STEWARD

GOLDEN TEXT.—He that is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much; and he that is unrighteous in a very little is unrighteous also in much. Luke 16:10.

Our last lesson was concerning a young man who wasted his father's substance in riotous living (Luke xv, 13). Now we read of a steward who wasted his master's goods.

We are all stewards of Him who gives us life and breath and all things; in whom we live and move and have our being; in whose hand our breath is and whose are all our ways; who gives us richly all things to enjoy. (Acts xvii, 25, 28; Dan. v, 23; 1 Tim. vi, 17). We are either good stewards, using His gifts for others as well as ourselves, or we are selfish, using all things for ourselves only. The rich man of next week's lesson, we will find, was unbelieving and selfish. The rich man of chapter xii, 16-20, was thoroughly selfish and foolish. The rich young ruler of chapter xviii, 23, was also more interested in his riches than in a proper use of them, and in that connection our Lord said that riches sometimes hindered a man from entering the kingdom. It is not always so, for Zacharias was rich and Joseph of Arimathea (Luke xix, 2, 9; Matt. xxvii, 57), as also were Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, David and others.

Money is not necessarily evil, but it is written, "The love of money is the root of all evil," and it is better to follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness (1 Tim. vi, 10, 11). This present world or age is evil, it lieth in the wicked one, the devil is its god, its friendship is enmity with God, we are not to be conformed to it, for we are not of it (Gal. ii, 4; 1 John v, 19; 11 Cor. iv, 4; Jas. iv, 4; Rom. xii, 2; John xvii, 14, 16). Therefore we cannot serve God and Mammon, or riches, but we can make good use of Mammon and use this world without abusing it (verses 9, 13).

As to this unjust steward whom our Lord uses as an illustration, he was found guilty of defrauding his employer and was told that he must lose his situation. He at once set about providing for himself when he would be no longer steward by cutting down the indebtedness of all his lord's debtors, thus laying them under obligation to him to befriend him when he would have no employment. He was such a dishonest fellow that he did not care how much he robbed his master if he could only provide for himself. His master commended his shrewdness in thus providing for his future, even though it was at further cost to himself. Our Lord did not speak well of him, for He would not justify a wrong transaction, but He did say that this bad man was wiser in his way than those who made no provision for their future in the world to come.

I have often been asked how our Lord could commend this unjust man and his sin. Our Lord did not commend him; it was his own lord, or master, who told him, virtually, that he was a clever rascal in providing for his future in this fraudulent way. Our Lord said to His disciples that it would be well to use all present opportunities in their reach with reference to the future that many might welcome them in the kingdom. All believers are put to trust with the gospel and with the talents and pounds, and all are stewards of the manifold grace of God, and some are stewards of the mysteries of God, all have received the spirit of profit withal (1 Thess. ii, 4; Matt. xxv; Luke xix; 1 Pet. iv, 10; 1 Cor. iv, 1; xii, 7, 11). We are debtors to every creature to give the gospel to all, and by going, or helping others to go, and thus win souls, we are gathering unto Him those who will welcome us in His kingdom, even though we may never have seen them face to face on earth. Thus we cause joy in the presence of the angels now and great increase of joy to ourselves in His kingdom.

We cannot remind you too often that there are no degrees in salvation, no one can be more saved than another or more safe at one time than another after Jesus Christ is truly received. All who are in Christ are equally safe, and safe forever. But all saved ones are expected to serve the living and true God as He may direct, and every one shall receive his own reward according to his own labor (1 Cor. iii, 8; Rev. xxii, 12; Luke xiv, 14). The Pharisees who were covetous or money lovers derided Him and His teachings desiring the approval of men rather than the approval of God, and they violently opposed the King and the kingdom until they finally killed Him, saying, "We have no king but Caesar." Those who prefer the friendship of this world are called adulterers (Jas. iv, 4). The true disciple is married to the Lord to bring forth fruit unto God (Rom. vii, 4), but Israel was an empty vine bringing forth fruit unto himself, a degenerate plant of a strange vine bearing wild grapes (Hos. x, 1; Jer. ii, 21; Isa. v, 2).

That which men esteem and which God esteems are as far separate as hell and heaven, and yet the great crowd, many professing Christians included, prefer the ways of man and the praise of men because the god of this world hath blinded their minds. Let us consider well if we are faithful to the trust committed to us, desiring in all things the approval of our Lord, whose stewards we are, and remembering that we must give an account to Him of our stewardship.

ALLEN SWOPE, P. M.

STATE OF ANARCHY FEARED IN MEXICO

Administration Concerned Over New Developments Mentioned in Message From Funston.

MORE TROOPS MAY BE NEEDED

War Department Anxious to Have Large Force Ready at Vera
Cruz for any Emergency.

Washington, May 8.—Upon receiving a long cipher cablegram from Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz late yesterday Secretary Garrison called into conference Maj. Gen. Wether- spoon, chief of staff, and the entire general staff of the army. No intimation as to the nature of the dispatch was made public.

The conference lasted until nearly midnight and when Secretary Garrison finally left his office he said there would be no announcement. He and the army officers wore grave faces and it was no secret that news of importance had been received.

The intimation that Huerta might resign or be forced to leave the country and the state of anarchy, which might call for intervention, came in grave contrast with the announcement from the peace envoys. They report plans progressing favorably for a settlement soon after the proposed conference to be held at Niagara Falls, Canada.

Later Secretary Garrison said Gen. Funston had transmitted some information which refugees had brought from the City of Mexico as to conditions in the Mexican capital. The secretary declined to comment upon them. He said, however, that no aggressive movement of any kind by the American forces was ordered.

It was understood that the refugees from the City of Mexico had informed Gen. Funston of the critical aspect of affairs in the Huerta regime; that a collapse might be expected momentarily and that conditions of anarchy might ensue. The purpose of Gen. Funston in making known these reports to the War Department was believed to be to advise the Washington administration of the possibilities that might develop from a fall of Huerta, in order that if the American army is compelled to rescue foreigners or restore order it may be fully equipped for such an expedition.

Though not officially stated, it is known that the high officials of the War Department are anxious to place at Vera Cruz or on transports within striking distance a large enough force, perhaps 50,000 or 60,000 men, to make an expedition to Mexico City if it becomes necessary. Officials of the War Department are known to believe that if an advance on the City of Mexico is ordered it will be necessary to guard every mile of railroad as the army moves forward and that a large force would show the natives the futility of resistance, whereas a division of 15,000 men might be subject to several attacks along the route, with possibly big losses.

The American army officers also regard the situation at Vera Cruz as likely to become desperate in the event that anarchy breaks out in the City of Mexico or the forces of Gen. Maas should make an attack on their own initiative irrespective of the Huerta government's promise of a suspension of hostilities against the United States.

A large number of bluejackets could be landed from the warships to reinforce the 7,000 troops and marines in Vera Cruz, but, in order to hold the positions outside of Vera Cruz up to the waterworks, more infantry is believed to be required by Gen. Funston. There have been persistent reports that he has asked for more men, but the War Department has not made any announcement on the subject.

UNITED MINE WORKERS TO CONSIDER COLORADO CASE

Executive Board to Hear Recommendations From Sub-committee About Strike Conditions.

Indianapolis, May 8.—The executive board of the United Mine Workers of America today will receive the recommendations of a subcommittee appointed several days ago to make a report on the Colorado strike situation. The report will review the situation in Colorado and, it was said last night, will contain recommendations looking toward a final settlement of the differences.

Members of the executive board said yesterday they were much impressed with the idea advanced by citizens of Colorado recommending that the state take over the mines and operate them until the strike is settled.

William Green, secretary of the miners' organization, said he did not believe the report of the subcommittee would go so far as to make a recommendation of that kind, although the members of the miners' organization were impressed with such a suggestion.

AN ATTRACTIVE RAGLAN MODEL FOR THE SEPARATE COAT

In separate coats as well as frocks and suits the raglan shoulder is an approved feature. There is also a tendency to belt them in slightly at the bottom or at a low waistline, allowing the bottom to flare in the new modish way. The coat shown in No. 8270 is developed in a brown tweed mixture and combined with a three-tiered skirt of the same material; this makes an unusually effective walking suit and both coat and skirt may be worn separately if desired.

If gabardine, serge or moire were used with this design, a suit dressy enough for almost any occasion would result. This coat requires for size 36, 3 1/4 yards of 36-inch or 3 1/4 yards of 42-inch material; 4 1/4 yards of the same widths will be needed for the skirt. A happy combination of moire and silk poplin was used in the afternoon frock shown in No. 8297, with an underblouse in one of Poiré's brightly colored silks; there is also a guimpe of cream colored net and a broad girdle of satin, as a finishing touch.

This dress may be copied in size 36 with 4 1/4 yards of 36-inch or 4 1/4 yards of 42-inch material. Both silk poplin and moire are wide, averaging 42 inches; in price they range from $1.50 to $4.00 a yard.

No. 8270—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8002—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 8297—sizes 34 to 42.

CHAPTER XI.

Before Bob could open the door it was pushed in from the outside, and as Katherine looked up, she looked straight into the eyes of Dan Slade. For a moment the room was electric with the intensity of the situation. Then the girl lifted her head proudly and met Slade's eyes again. In them he saw a light he had never seen there before, a light of soft tenderness and deep joy, a look that made his heart start as he realized what he had lost.

"Good morning, Mr. Slade," she said coldly as Bob led her out into the summer sunshine and to life and love.

As Slade, hat in hand, stood gazing at his wife, Mary realized that for the first time in all their married life she had the advantage. For once the roles of the humble and the domineering were reversed. There was a long pause, awkward only for Slade, for Mary was quite at ease. He coughed several times, and then, in a manner he thought quite appropriate, asked:

"What did that girl come here for—Miss—er—"

"Oh—forgotten her name?" came from Mary, mockingly. "Miss Strickland came just for a visit."

"Well, what did she want?" Slade demanded.

"She came to find out what I meant to do." There was a world of irony in Mary's tone.

"What has that got to do with her? I don't approve of a woman coming into my house to find out what you—I don't like it! It's a bit of impudence. What else did she have to say? Did she—er—"

"She's not a very confidential girl," returned Mary, evasively.

"I see. So she and Robert have made up?" Slade considered this rather a master stroke. By continuing such questions he might get at the real state of affairs.

"Yes."

"Well, well—I'll have to do something for them," Slade was paternally patronizing, but he did not deceive Mary.

"Your business out here today must be very urgent. What is it?"

Slade tried frantically to find a reason for his visit. When he had left town it was for the one reason of trying to bully Mary into leaving the cottage and agreeing to a divorce. With the complexion of matters so changed, he was at a complete loss to explain his visit. He was irritated and annoyed. He was not used to having the tables so completely turned on him. More than that, the little cottage never looked more inviting. As a matter of fact, Slade had often found the demands of his new life considerable of a nuisance, and as a whiff of the savory lamb stew came to his nostrils, a memory of the peace and contentment of the old life flashed through his mind. Nothing at the club had been especially tasty of late. More than that, the drive down had given him an appetite.

"Cooking a stew, Mary?" he asked rather abruptly and inconsequentially.

"Just one of my old stews," Mary's voice was indifferent. She was thoroughly disgusted with her husband, now that she knew just what he had planned to do. Jealousy and outraged pride were in her heart. This man, for whom she had worked and whose very faults and failings she had loved, had been deliberately planning to thrust her aside for a woman who had enjoyed only the sweets of life, a woman whose youth and beauty and social position put Mary completely out of the contest. The very thought was salt in her wounded heart.

"I'll stay to dinner, if I may," announced Slade, removing his gloves and laying aside his coat.

"Certainly. Take your old chair, if you like." There was none of the enthusiasm that might have been in Mary's voice if he had come earlier in the day. She was formally, painstakingly polite. "You can talk over your business while we eat."

Slade watched his wife from under lowered lids as he ate. He feared that Mary knew everything. This calm, constrained atmosphere was more baffling than an emotional outburst would have been.

"Why did you come, Dan?" Mary was rather enjoying his discomfort.

"Oh, yes, I—I'll take my coffee now, if I may, good and strong."

Mary dropped in two lumps and the right amount of cream, more from long habit than any desire to please him.

"I came out here to— Do you know I rather like my dinner at noon hour, like we used to have it here. Aren't you eating?"

"Oh, yes, I'll eat," replied Mary, "but you haven't told me why you came out."

"I came out here today to remonstrate with you for living in this house," Slade blurted out, after a pause, "but—I've sort of changed my mind," and he reached for the pickle jar. "These pickles fairly make my mouth water. They're very good," he went on, appreciatively.

"Well, what's changed you?" Mary refused to be diverted by the subject of dinner at noon or the all-important matter of pickles.

"You know I'm kind of glad to see the place again, and you know, I like this stew," and he proceeded to busy himself with the matter of eating—anything to gain time under Mary's merciless, persistent questioning.

"Have a biscuit," suggested Mary, "and—tell me why you came out here."

Slade looked longingly toward the window, as if he expected to find an inspiration for a suitable answer there.

"Why, the old rosebush out there yet, holding the fort!" he exclaimed.

"You Go!" Warned Mary.

"I must have a look at it," and leaving his dinner, he went over to the window.

Mary hurriedly refilled his plate with stew the moment his back was turned.

"I declare!" He was still enthusing over the rosebush. "Quite a bush!"

He was beginning to feel more at ease. He had the satisfied feeling that comes to every man when his stomach is full. He felt very benign toward Mary, even toward Katherine and Hayes.

"I'll tell you what I am going to do, Mary," he began. "You like this house—always did. Well, you can stay here. I won't oppose it. There's nothing in the world you want I wouldn't give you—nothing. Now, what can I do for you? What can I—"

Mary shook her head and laughed quietly.

"Why, Mary!" Slade was distressed at having his patronizing advances treated in such a manner.

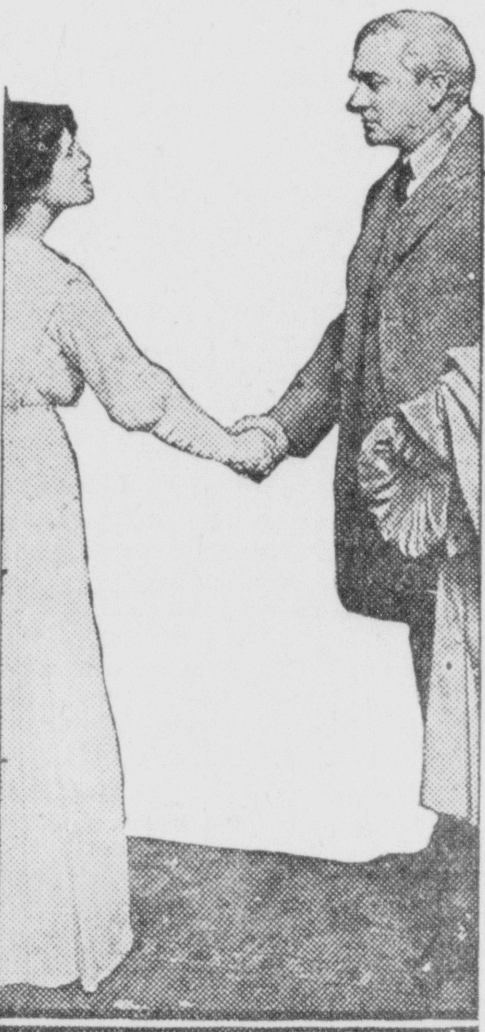

"Oh, Dan, Dan!" Mary laughed, mockingly, unable longer to conceal her feelings. Slade realized in an instant that Mary knew everything.

"Well, I'll tell you one thing!" he blurted out. "I never cared a button for that girl—if that's what you mean! I swear I didn't!"

"Who said you did, Dan?" Mary's manner was provokingly calm.

"I never did! I'm not that kind of a man, and you know it," he protested.

"Who's accusing you? I never mentioned her name. But, Dan, she's very young and very pretty, and I don't blame you as long as you were going to try another wife. You might as well have had one who was young and pretty."

Slade pook-pooked vigorously.

"I hope the next one you get will be just as pretty, for your sake."

"There isn't going to be a next one," protested Slade, after the manner of all men.

"Oh, yes there is; you've got the idea now. The mere fact that you missed this time will keep you at it."

"I've got enough," Slade saw that frankness was the only way out of it. "I'm not going to make a devilish fool of myself again."

"Don't let your coffee get cold," reminded Mary, tantalizingly. "Now, Dan, you wanted me to go away, and I will. I've made up my mind."

Slade remonstrated. "We can arrange everything right here and now. This determination of yours is pretty sudden, isn't it?"

"Not as sudden as your change of mind when you first came into this room today."

"Well, where are you going?"

"Oh, I don't know," Mary replied, indifferently. "What does become of divorced women?"

"Now, Mary, don't talk like that; it ain't natural from you." This time Slade was doing the pleading. "You can't go off alone like this."

"Oh, can't I? I could a week ago, or an hour ago. Why can't I now? I can't wait to pack my things."

Slade gazed at his wife in amazement. If the patient rug on which he had thoughtlessly trampled so long had suddenly been transformed into a snarling animal, Slade could not have been any more surprised.

"Why, Mary, see here," he began, then stopped. "Oh, h—l, what's the use? You meet me half way in the way I want to live, and you'd better come home. We'll open the house in town again, and we'll make the best of things. There! We'll make the best of things."

"How can we?" argued Mary. "If I was old-fashioned and behind the times and held you back a week ago, why wouldn't I now? Try as hard as I might, you said I couldn't help you. I'm just the same today as I was a week ago. I haven't changed a bit. I'm just the plain little dud I always was. What's true Monday is true Tuesday. We can't get back to where we were once."

"You meet me half way and I'll do my part." Dan had never known her to be obstinate like this before. Usually his slightest wish had been her keenest desire.

"Dan, you wanted that divorce?" The question was ominous, but Slade had to admit the point.

"Well, you're going to get it!"

"But I don't want it now."

"You're going to have it, Dan Slade," and Mary's mouth set like a steel trap. "You're going to have it if I have to get it myself!"

"What do you want with a divorce when I'm willing to give in?" stormed Slade, losing his patience.

"How long have you been willing to give in, Dan? What did you come out here for?" She paused, but he did not answer. "You came to force me out of this house. Don't tell me you didn't, because I know. And I know why you didn't do it. You came in here and suddenly you got a look at that girl and me! And it staggered you! For once, something swept you off your feet! You knew then that I'd found it all out. You knew I knew everything. And now you've been thrown over by that girl. She's thrown you over! Between the two of us—you're caught. And that's the real reason that you're not standing here shaking your finger in my face and telling me to go out, to get out, to go."

Mary stopped for breath, and walked up and down the room before she proceeded with her bitter denunciation.

"And the worst of it is that after the girl's gone you actually ask me to take her back—to take her back—just as they all do. It's another man 'come home to mother.' Well, here's one woman that's not going to 'take her husband back!' No, sir! If you pushed me aside for ambition, I might think it over, but you've pushed me aside for that girl's twenty-seven years of prettiness," and she pointed an accusing finger at the door through which Katherine Strickland had gone hand-in-hand with her sweetheart.

"That's what you've done—for twenty-seven years of youth, for twenty-seven years of figure and eyes and freshness and all the rest of it. You put me aside for a younger woman!" the very utterance almost lost Mary her courage, but she kept on. "You put me aside for a younger woman. Now, no matter what you do, you can't get me back!"

"Now, Mary," Slade begged, beginning to feel that he was losing everything worth while.

"I take off my ring," Mary continued, ignoring his interruption.

"Now it's ended," she finished as she laid the ring on the table.

Slade strode up to her in the manner which had kept her subdued all the 30 years of their married life.

"You put that ring on again," he commanded. "It's yours! You put that ring on."

"No, sir! It's off for good." For the first time Mary's attitude was one of stubborn temper. She was enjoying complete mastery for the first time in her life. "Wild horses couldn't have got it off yesterday—I thought it was part of my nature! But now, now I'm going to ask you to go. I've got work to do. I'm closing the house. I'm closing it for good—forever."

Mary had said all she had to say. Now that her mind was made up, it was characteristic of her to turn to action. She started hurriedly and noisily to clear up the table, scraping the plates and piling them up ready to carry into the kitchen.

"For God's sake, Mary, don't!" protested Slade, too bewildered to know what to do or say.

"Go along," urged Mary, as she put the sugar bowl in its place on the sideboard.

"Mary, if you persist in this, I'll go back and I'll smash that house in town—I'll smash it to pieces," he threatened. "I'll sell it. I'll give it away—break it up! That's what made all this trouble! You know that! Trying to live up to that d—d house. You told me not to build it, and this is what I get for it."

"Go back and smash it. You've smashed other things that hurt me worse."

"Mary, you're not going to turn me out of this house where we've lived so long together?"

"You've turned yourself out. Go, now." Mary's wrath gathered force as she repeated her command.

"Ah, come now, Mary—"

"You go," warned Mary, "before I say something I'll regret." She was scarcely hearing what Slade was saying now—her ears were full of the things he had said to her in her own home, and that night in Senator

Strickland's library.

"Mary!" The one word was full of protest and a plea for forgiveness. "Go before I say it!" It was all Mary could do to speak quietly.

"Mary!" again the word spoke volumes.

"No use," she replied, as she picked up a pile of dishes. "You pushed me aside for a younger woman, and now you go," and with both hands full of dishes she kicked the kitchen door open with an angry foot, and proceeded to busy herself at the sink.

"Mary! See here!" he called. There was no reply.

He walked absently to the sugar bowl selected a lump of sugar and started to eat it, brushing one hand with the other, and then, still absent-minded, ignored the napkin within easy reach and wiped his fingers down the front of his coat. It was the old Dan Slade, a reversion to type.

Then he quietly picked up his hat and gloves and coat. Mary heard him going, and came back into the room.

"Dan," she said as she stretched out her hand to him. "I can't hate you—I just can't. We're going to say good-by like two old friends. He took her hand eagerly and held it. After a moment she pulled it away and resumed picking up the dinner things. Slade looked at her longingly for a moment, then quietly opened the door and was gone.

INDIANA WOMAN THANKS MAYR REMEDY FOR STOMACH RELIEF

Mrs. Homer Sexton Tells Friends
About Use of Wonderful Treatment.

Mrs. Homer Sexton, of Bloomington, Ind., suffered from digestive and stomach disorders for a long time. She tried to find relief, but it seemed a long way off—until she tried Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy.

The first dose gave her relief and started her on the way to health. She wrote:

"Your medicine did me a world of good. I have taken your treatment and believe it has cured me and I have told all my friends about it. I am ever so thankful."

Such words of praise come from users of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy all over the United States. It is quick and safe. The first dose convinces—no long treatment.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and removes poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to C. E. Loertz drug store and ask about the wonderful results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful effects.

WILL NOT CLOSE INDIANA'S MINES

Operators and Miners Reach An Agreement.

CONCESSIONS ON BOTH SIDES

The Dispute Which Had Been Raging Since the First of April, When Old Contract Expired, Has Been Amicably Adjusted by the Adoption of a New Agreement, Which Will Be in Force Until April 1, 1916.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 8.—With certain concessions by both sides the operators and miners of district No. 11 effected a settlement, which had been sought since April 1, the date of the expiration of the old contract. The agreement was approved by the joint convention with less than a dozen dissenting votes cast by miners. The new contract will become effective June 1 and will be in force until April 1, 1916. To aid the striking miners in Colorado the district miners voted $10,000.

The "dirty" coal demand, one of the bones of contention, was settled with one change from the old contract, which provides for a two days' suspension as the third dock for loading dirty coal instead of $1 fine, as now is the custom. The miners scored a victory in their demand for the powder clause. There still remains the question of adapting the wage scale to machines recently installed in the mines, which are said to cut more coal than the old machines. This was referred to a joint committee with power to act.

SLIPPED AWAY FROM THE WEDDING GUESTS

McAdoo and Bride Leave White House in Haste.

Washington, May 8.—The president's youngest daughter, Eleanor Randolph Wilson, was married at 6 o'clock last evening to William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury. This was the second White House wedding of the Wilson administration, the president's second daughter, Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, having been united to Francis Bowes Sayre just six months ago. The McAdoo-Wilson wedding makes the fourteenth held in the White House.

The wedding ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Sylvanus W. Beach, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Princeton, N. J., who also married Mrs. Sayre, was simple in the extreme. The company was the smallest ever assembled to witness a White House wedding. Only the members of the immediate family of the president, a few of Miss Eleanor's intimate friends, three of Secretary McAdoo's six children by his first wife, the members of the cabinet with their families, and military and naval officers, members of the president's personal staff, who served as ushers, were present.

At the head of the wedding procession marched two dainty little girls, Miss Sally McAdoo, youngest daughter of the bridegroom, and Miss Nancy Lane, daughter of the secretary of the interior, as flower girls. Behind them, two by two, marched the glittering ushers and then Mrs. Sayre, her blonde beauty set off by a gown of palest pink, as matron of honor, and Miss Margaret Wilson, the president's eldest daughter, in a similarly fashioned costume of pale blue. Each carried a shedderess crook decorated with apple blossoms.

The bride, leaning on the arm of her father, wore a gown of ivory white satin embellished with rich old point lace and a veil fastened about the brow with a wreath of orange blossoms, which also encircled a cap of point lace. As the bridal procession entered the blue room the clergyman, accompanied by the bridegroom and the best man, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, entered from the red parlor. The word "obey" was included in the service. The wedding service was completed at 6:17 o'clock, whereupon the bride and groom turned from the altar to receive the congratulations of the wedding party in the red parlor.

While the wedding supper was in full swing Secretary McAdoo and his bride left the White House in one of the administration limousines to catch a railway train for New York.

Giving Back Confiscated Property.
 Mexico City, May 8.—General Huerta has ordered the restoration to Americans of all property confiscated by Mexican officials. On many American ranches in southern states great herds of cattle which had been seized by state officials are being returned.

WILL TAKE WITNESS STAND

Becker Decides to Testify in His Own Behalf.

New York, May 8.—Charles Becker will testify in his own defense. He believes that his failure to face the jury in the former trial made an irredeemably bad impression on that jury.

Becker's determination to take the stand is the result of Mrs. Becker's persistence that he should stand up himself and say to the jury that Rose, Webber, Vallon and Schepps are liars. Becker said to a friend:

"I am on trial for murder, not for grafting. Why should I hang back and endanger my murder case because of a fear that the district attorney will hammer me about graft and bank accounts?"

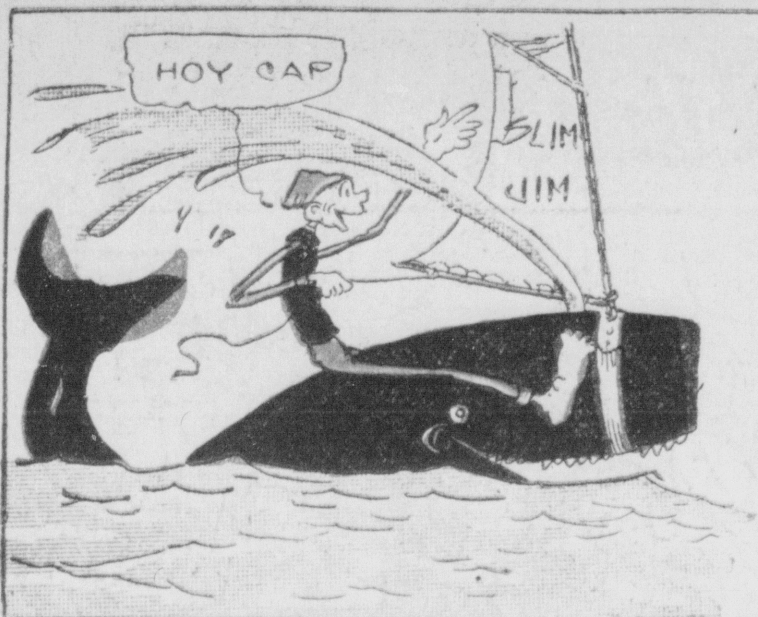

The Fifth and Eleventh cavalry are to be sent to El Paso following their tour of duty in the Colorado coal fields, which will bring the quota of troops mobilized at Fort Bliss to 7,500.

Theodore Roosevelt during his exploring trip through the wilds of Brazil, lost more than fifty-five pounds in weight.

Five Mexican outlaws were killed and two summarily executed after their capture, when a detachment of Constitutional soldiers met a band of marauders under Manuel Gutierrez near Colonia Juarez.

Mothers' Day.

Next Sunday will be observed as Mothers' Day at the First Baptist Sunday School and church service. Special programs have been arranged. Automobiles will be sent for any mothers who cannot come otherwise if notice is sent to A. P. Carter by noon Saturday.
